

Consider this:

Money you spent this year on band-aids from hand injuries incurred while breaking the tips off sampling tubes: $41.00

Annual cost of donuts purchased for bribing employees to stay awake during compliance training: $86.00

Cost of your yearly pair of steel toed boots you usually forget to bring to the plant anyway: $120.00

What the $15 Georgia local section AIHA annual membership fee seems like in comparison: PRICELESS

GEORGIA LOCAL SECTION AIHA

Annual Vendor Day meeting gives members the opportunity to experience the latest technology.

Georgia Local Section meetings attract nationally known speakers.

Of all the money you spend furthering your Industrial Hygiene career, we think your $15 is well spent on a Georgia local section AIHA annual membership. Just think of some of the benefits:

Professional Advancement

The credibility of belonging to a network of local IH professionals is a credential in itself. Local section informational and educational opportunities are offered to keep members at the cutting edge of the profession.

Information

Credible local sources and links to valuable tools through our award winning web site provide information for members to keep up with the latest developments on issues at the local, state and national level.

Educational Opportunities

Georgia local section strives to offer quality educational meetings on a quarterly basis. Our recent list of excellent speakers includes: Dr. Steven Levine, 2001 AIHA national president, Mr. Aaron Trippler, AIHA Director of Government Affairs, and Dr. Martin Harper, Assistant Professor of Industrial Hygiene at UAB. The local section also solicits local presenters in an effort to recognize the diverse expertise and experience of our members.

Interaction and Networking

What better way to network with fellow IH's than the local section meeting? The local section also provides an annual vendor day where you can meet the local vendors and learn about the latest IH services and equipment.

Employment Information

The local section web site posts career opportunities, and announcements of job openings are often made at local section meetings. You may even get an impromptu interview opportunity with on the spot at a local section meeting!

Annual Membership Directory

The annual directory of members puts the entire list of local colleagues within your reach. The Board of Directors information and vendor ads are also included to complete your local professional network.

To receive these exceptional membership benefits, join or renew your annual membership by visiting our award winning web site at www.georgiaaiha.org.
